

Stamp of Excellence

The first U.S. postage stamp to commemorate an African-American was issued in 1940 to honor Booker T. Washington. Have students select a famous person to honor with a commemorative stamp. Ask them to draw a picture of their honored person on this stamp pattern. Encourage them to write reports about his or her contributions. Display the stamps and reports on the class board.

