

Reading Connection

Give a "faucet" pattern to each student in the class. Have students write their names on their faucets and pin them on the class bulletin board.

Cut a substantial number of these "pipe" patterns from colored construction paper. Place the patterns in a plastic bucket near the bulletin board. As students read selected library books, instruct them to select one of the patterns, fill in the necessary information and attach it to their faucet.

Your students will marvel at the twists and turns their plumbing creations take as they read more and more books!
